

Projection type methods in Banach space with application in topology optimization

Christoph Rupprecht (University of Regensburg)

Abstract:

A generalization of the projected gradient method with variable metric to an abstract Banach space setting is presented. Global convergence of the resulting method can be shown by adapting the assumptions of the finite dimensional setting appropriately using two different norms. As an application a topology optimization problem using a multi phase field model is presented.